6th Annual California Law Enforcement Challenge Awards Presented

CHP and Local Police Departments Honored for Excellence

(SACRAMENTO) Area California Highway Patrol (CHP) offices and local police departments were honored today for excellence in community traffic safety programs. The awards were presented at the sixth annual California Law Enforcement Challenge conference in Sacramento. CHP offices and police departments throughout the state competed against similar-sized departments for the honors.

“I want to congratulate all of the award winners for their dedication to serving their communities and saving lives on our roadways,” said Business, Transportation and Housing Secretary Dale Bonner.

The top honor, The Commissioner’s Award, was presented to the Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo University Police Department and the Bakersfield CHP Area Office for overall excellence in traffic safety programs.

“There were many very worthy candidates again this year. Selecting just two winners is difficult. But these two entries exemplify the commitment of all the agencies represented here,” stated CHP Commissioner Joe Farrow.

The California Law Enforcement Challenge awards showcase the best and most innovative programs produced by traffic safety organizations throughout the state. The programs are designed to increase usage of seat belts/child safety seats and curtail impaired driving and speeding. Those are the three primary causes of death on California roadways.

“It is programs like these that have contributed to the lowering of California’s Mileage Death Rate (number of fatalities per 100 million miles driven) to a record low of 1.18 this past year,” noted Dr. David Manning, Regional Administrator of The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The awards were presented at a day-long traffic safety symposium in Sacramento sponsored by the CHP.
